

CAPTURE OF WEST POINT.

RAID OF ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YOUNG LADIES STUDENTS OF VASSAR COLLEGE ON THE MILITARY ACADEMY.

The ladies of Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, who are 400 in number, have an annual excursion every year just before their commencement. The cost of educating a young lady at Vassar, including the necessary wardrobe which must be purchased for her, is about $1,000. Girls who have been studying hard from autumn until June are naturally anxious to have a little amusement, and it was determined this year in the secret councils of the students to visit West Point and surprise the cadets at the post by a visit, and accordingly Miss Chamberlain was chosen to be the chief of their committee. The steamer Mary Powell was chartered for the occasion, and as she had been refitted, upholstered and a new cedar placed in her at a cost of $1,000, under the charge of Captain Anderson, the boat was engaged and six horse car loads of young ladies from Vassar College were taken to the Mary Powell, at Poughkeepsie, and were courteously taken on board at thirteen minutes before two o'clock, when the boat steamed down the river. At half past two o'clock yesterday afternoon the Mary Powell reached Newburg, and at three o'clock the steamer was fastened to the dock opposite Garrison's and just at the end of the road leading to the military post where the future valor of the American flag is enshrined. There was neglect in not having a band of music on board; but as there were not any young gentlemen on board who might have done the same, the music was omitted, and the band did not miss this. But this defect will most certainly be remedied at the June Commencement. One hundred and twenty young ladies students joined the party, and they were accompanied by Professor Maria Mitchell, the celebrated astronomer, and Professor Anna Mitchell, her celebrated astronomical scholar. The ladies ascended the hill slowly and with much difficulty, some of them being in the post roads, others in the paths leading up to the academy, and there was an instantaneous reiteration between the cadets, who were in full dress, and the handsome visitors, there also provided for their entertainment, of the words "Good morning," a skirted line of cadets would run forward in the direction of Roe's Hotel, with a line of battle behind. When the skirmish line was disengaged the cadets would all run forward, and the girls would run in a good way, and as they charged toward the north of the campus a number of young ladies, who could not get away in time, were so rounded by fire and smoke. But the soldiers were always ready to give way, or to give way, or to give way, and the Lochinvar, broke their line and fell to the rear in two and three, and this is the only instance known of the four companies, A, B, C and D, of the West Point battalion, ever being surprised and captured, and not only to the law, or to men who, through malice and ill will might assume a right to vindictively. These points thus claimed by the counsel of Mr. Fanning were subsequently sustained, the writer of the article on the subject of the defense.

"Oh, mercy!" cried a young lady, as she ran to the scene of a wide spreading fire. "I thought we were in a real battle; they looked so angry and threatened grimly. Why can't they not act more kindly in battle?" After the campfire had been lit, the ladies scattered around the grounds, many in company with the cadets who showed more gallantly, and paid every attention to the如何。 It is impossible to say how many vows were breached or how many promises were made to meet again on some future occasion but it is certain that everyone went away in a very agreeable mood. The parades were interrupted, and the exercises of the day were suspended, and the games discontinued. The officers and the students were invited to a general assembly in the chapel and the tabernacle. Major General Artemus Ward was noticed, the battle flags that had been captured from the enemies of the country. Later in the afternoon and toward sunset there was the regular dress parade, when the our companies formed in the shadow of their quarters and marched out into the field with the bugle and drum. The bands were also present to music to ladies' ears. The sergeants, wearing their red sashes, in front of the companies, looked splendid, and "The Milligan Guards" and "Palmer's Guards" the adored sons of quietness, the same day, in review, playing a waltz in triple time, and as it got to the fourth point of the line, wheeled, and, opening its fan, marched down solidly and in perfect order. The march was over and the last students walked down the Mary Powell, on which supper had been provided, a number of officers and some ladies from post and academy were down, and the students, who had been sent to the Hudson to Poughkeepsie, which was reached at about ten o'clock last evening. The whole affair was imprudent, and was managed in a most execrable manner by Miss Chamberlain and the committee of young ladies who assisted her.

THE PAPAL DELEGATES.

FALL OF THE ABBEY AND OTHERS ON THE PRESIDENT—COURTESIES EXTENDED TO THE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, May 27, 1875.—To-day Mr. Roncalli, Abbot of the Pope, accompanied by his Secretary, Rev. Mr. Ugochi, Count Marafuchi, of the Pope's Noble Guard; Rev. Dr. O'Connor, of Philadelphia; Rev. Dr. McGlynn, and ex-Collector Thomas Murphy, of New York, called upon the President, at the Executive Mansion. The President received the party very courteously. After the formalities of introduction the Abbot addressed the President in Italian. At the conclusion of his remarks they were translated for the President by the Rev. Dr. McGlynn, as follows:

THE ABBEY'S ADDRESS.

The Holy Father, in sending me to present to the Pope my thanks for his kind expressions of regard and good wishes for the country and myself, and in order to reciprocate your own kind expressions of courtesy.

The President said in reply:

I beg, Monsignor, that you will convey to the Pope my thanks for his kind expressions of regard and good wishes for the country and myself, and in order to reciprocate your own kind expressions of courtesy.

The President then invited the party to be seated, and conversed pleasantly with them for a few moments about their intended trip to the West and the duration of their visit. The party also called upon the Secretary of State and all the other members of the cabinet. They were everywhere received with the greatest attention. The Secretary of State expressed himself as very much pleased with the visit of the Abbot, and spoke of the great satisfaction which the object of the Abbot's mission to this country gave him. He said that he himself was particularly pleased that the honor of the cardinalate had been conferred by one of his own State and City, the Archbishops of New York, who were the immediate superiors of the Abbot. The Abbot and party were escorted from the Department of the Interior, at the request of Secretary Seward, to the Treasury House, where the Secretary of the Treasury and the party conversed for a little while through the interpreters.

The Abbot and party leave to-morrow for Pittsburgh.

LITERARY NOTES.

A NEW CITY DIRECTORY.

Every business man needs a reliable directory many times each day, and every person who has occasion to find a resident here needs one so frequently that to be without one would be an inconveniences loss. For many years one enterprise firm, Trow & Co., has furnished this indispensable convenience, and has no rival in its way. This year a new claimant appears to contest for the great public for the need of superior excellence with the long established city directory to which we have become so familiar. Mr. Lawrence G. Goulding, two days ago had ready his directory. It is a book of nearly 1,000 pages, and after having been corrected to the new residence names of the May meeting, it is now complete and may be had in bound in four days. Its pages will be bound in 2200 names of persons residing and doing business in New York. The book is stated to be a greater number by far than the Goulding's. Besides this the volume is accompanied by a new map of the city, with the latest annexations, and it embraces a compendium of municipal documents, maps, tables, lists of steamship offices, banks, hospitals, docks, car lines, clubs, newspapers, concert and other subjects of constant inquiry. It is a new street directory, with corrected street numbers, and is a valuable addition to the list of the old directory publishers to place theirs in the market, and shows once again that competition is a wonderful stimulant to enter-
